Countdown

There are 17 days until the Social Studies Fair.

There are 45 days until Family Entertainment Night.

Today is National Sons Day.

Around the world, slightly more sons are born than daughters. Both bring joy to families. When it comes to our children, our rambunctious sons grow into adult men. Some are soft-spoken and gentle. Others with a spark of curiosity fill every hour with questions, some unanswerable.

Parents and family members strive to mold them into a person better than we are. Sons, like many children, test the boundaries until one day, they stand before us, grown. National Sons Day encourages parents to be role models and provide the boundaries sons need, celebrate their successes while guiding them through their failures, and give them a foundation of skills that they will rely on for a lifetime and pass on to their sons.
