Today is Talk Like a Pirate Day!

All you bilge rats, Aaaaaaaaaaaaaarrrrrrrrrrgh! As you are out and about on September 19th, don't be surprised if people are saying, "Ahoy Matie," "Avast," "Aye, Aye Capt'n," "Land ho!" "Hornpipe," and many other pirate-like phrases,
because it's International Talk Like a Pirate Day.

While ordering your food in the drive-thru, ask if they have change for gold bullion. Try testing your pirate language out at the library when asking for the location of Moby Dick. The pirate language always fairs well in rough seas. Settle a debate with "I'm right or I'll walk the plank!"

Did you know?

- Being a pirate wasn't just for men. Famous female pirates include Mary Read, Anne Bonny, Grace O'Malley, and Ching Shih.
- It is true that pirates wore eye patches. It's been said that one of the reasons pirates did this was to help keep one eye adjusted to night vision for seeing below deck.
- Almost every pirate ship had its own set of guidelines that all pirates had to agree to. This included how the loot would be divided, who had what chores, and what was expected of everyone. Believe it or not, one of the most common rules was no fighting onboard. If two pirates had a disagreement they'd have to wait, and fight on land.
